

PERISHABLE GOODS BANNED BY RAILROADS

practically normal within 30 days.
Police Chief Healey today issued orders cancelling all furloughs of members who are on furlough.

No Violence Expected
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—D. W. Campbell, assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific, issued a statement here today in which he expressed the belief that the railroad strike if called next Monday will not be marked by violence.

"This strike is not one in which we expect any property damage," Mr. Campbell said. "The engineers, firemen, conductors and other members of the brotherhoods affected are a fine body of men. They have families, in a large part own their homes and have made savings."

"They expect that the roads will be forced to accede to their demands through the force of economic pressure. We, on our side, do not believe so."

"The issue will probably be joined on this basis in case of strike, and from the instructions issued by the various leaders themselves, we are assured that they view this situation as I have outlined it."

Big Decrease in Freight
TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 29.—At least one-third of the freight business of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad will be cut off as one of the results of the embargo declared today against shipments of perishable goods and livestock, according to J. R. Kootz, general freight agent, through whom the order was issued. The order became effective immediately. The order will eliminate the use of all refrigerator cars and will directly affect melon and fruit shippers, who are now in the midst of their shipping season, as well as stock raisers with fattened animals ready for market.

Also in Colorado
DENVER, Aug. 29.—An embargo on perishable freight and livestock which could not reach its destination before the end of the present week was issued tonight by officials of the Colorado and Southern Railroad. A similar order will go out tomorrow from offices of other roads centering in Colorado.

COUPLE RECIPIENT OF HONORS FROM THE BUL BUL MEMBERSHIP

Miss Mary Kehoe and James T. Carey Guests of Honor Monday Night at Party In K. of C. Hall.

A jolly party was given by the members of the Bul Bul Company which recently produced a show in the Central Theatre at Lowell, to their coach, Miss Margaret Kehoe and her husband to be, James T. Carey, at the Knights of Columbus hall Monday night.

The party was attended by about forty young people, all of whom were anxious to honor the bride and groom-to-be. After a period of merry making at dancing and singing, an intermission was called and all were requested to draw their chairs around the platform. George Reardon mounted the rostrum in the garb of a minister, Mary Carretto and Vincent Carney, rigged out as a bride and groom, came forward accompanied by the bridesmaid, Marie Kaminski, and the best man, Ralph Brown, and a mock marriage ceremony took place. Reardon in the best style of Irish wit exacted most humorous replies from the supposed bride and groom who were addressed as Miss Kehoe and Mr. Carey. Then came the flower girls, Mayme Foster and Dollie Mounier, followed by little Georgina McAleer, wheeling a baby buggy with a doll for an infant.

The period of dancing followed in which all of the old dances were in vogue. Miss Kehoe and Mr. Carey were enticed from the room and a fine leather davenport was placed in the hall, and another surprise was given by a note saying: "From the St. Patrick's Choir of the Bul Bul Company. A broom was also presented the couple by her landress, Mary, with a note attached saying: "To keep the new home clean."

With the cutting of the bride's cake and a little more dancing the party of merry-makers adjourned a delightful evening.

Those present were: The Misses Mary Margaret Kehoe, Venita Lewis, Rose Wasser, Nona Beacher, Josephine Clouthier, Victoria Gregovich, Georgina McAleer, Winifred and Nellie Ryan, Alice Redor, Loretta McQuillan, Adelaide Harrison, Lucy and Mary Carretto, Cora Gundries, Kate Oddenotto, Fay Harvey, Rose Brown, Mayme Foster, Dorothy Mounier, Matilda Wasser and Marie Kaminski. The Messrs. James T. Carey, Vincent Carney, Frank Elwell, Ralph Brown, Joe Elden, Tom Kelley, George Reardon, James Gunther, Tom Gange, F. E. Dailey, J. E. Kerr, James Carretto and Erich Ralph. The party was chaperoned by Dave and Mrs. Foster and Mrs. T. Mounier.

BLEASE IN RUNNING

COLUMBUS, S. C., Aug. 29.—With portion of vote counted unofficially on the state-wide Democratic primary today indications were that former Governor Blease will make a second race for the gubernatorial nomination against Richard L. Manning, the incumbent, or Robert A. Cooper. Blease had a long lead over his opponents, but apparently lacked the majority necessary for nomination. Mr. Cooper and Governor Manning were running about even.

BOOTLEGGERS MADE SUBJECT OF SONG BY LOCAL WRITER

"Somebody Else Is Getting It" Composed (and May Be Sung) By George Reardon, Brewery Gulch Impresario.

The bootleggers of Bisbee are learning by heart the refrain and verses of a locally popular song. The author of the lines, George Reardon, is deservedly popular as a result of the song, or the parody of a well known song, and has been voted a card of thanks.

The song follows:
SOMEBODY ELSE IS GETTING IT
(The Bootleggers' Doxology)
(Sing very slow)

A Boot Legger I used to be,
Made my money so easily,
Sold my drink for a quarter a throw,

But as I reaped, so shall I sow,
I was caught so dead to right,
Lost all chance for a legal fight,
The numerous counts against me
they've rot.

I'll be in jail until I rot. But—

CHORUS:—
Somebody else is gettin' it, gettin' it.
Right where they handed it to me.
Somebody else is gettin' it, gettin' it.
Right where the chicken got the A-X-E.
Somebody thinks that he's in fine,
But he'll get his where I got mine
Somebody else is gettin' it, gettin' it.
Right where they handed it to me.

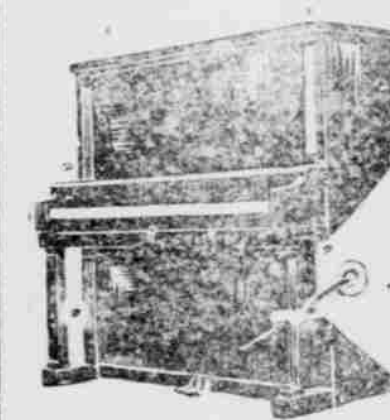

II—
The dear old bars where the booze once flew,
Are now changed to bars that you can just look through,
And many times my thoughts revert.

When I was making a quarter a squirt,
Deprived of drink or a borrowed chew,
Those days are gone, and the profits too,
But I can say I had some fun,
Although I feel like a big stale bun. But—

CHORUS:—
III—
Oh, now I'm talking to myself,
Sleeping on a bed that was once a shelf,
Dreaming daily of the time to come,
When I can sell the demon rum.
Of course the change will help my health,
Relieved by the Judge of all my wealth,
But while I'm here, I'll always try
To cheer my friends who come here to die. For—

CHORUS:—
YAGUIS ARE EXECUTED.
GUAYMAS, Aug. 29.—(By radio to San Diego)—Ten Yaqui Indians captured with arms in their possession were executed near this city August 26, it was learned here today.

MABEL TALIAFERRO FINE IN ORPHEUM PLAY

"The Snowbird" Is Title of Wonderful Production of Metro Company.

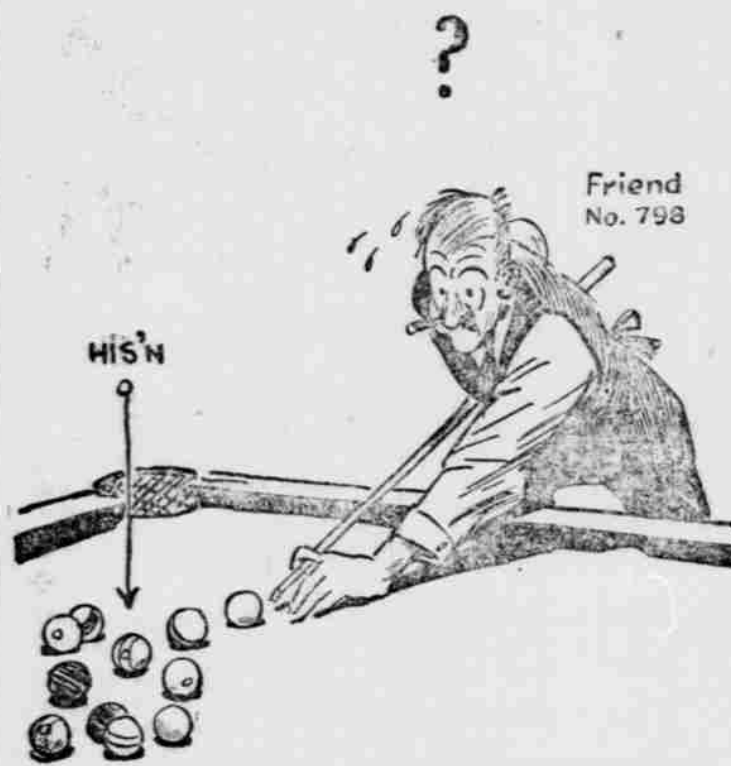

In this, the second of the distinctive plays on the Metro program, starring Mabel Taliaferro, who appears at the Orpheum today, those who enjoyed the sparkling character portrayal of this dainty little dramatic artist in "Her Great Price" will find an abundance to delight and thrill them anew. Miss Taliaferro, as a makeup society girl, who meets some of the most notable delineations of her artistic career and one that will vastly increase her already legion admirers. Edwin Capewell, who directed Ethel Barrymore in "The Final Judgment," Emily Stevens in "Destiny," of the Soul of a Woman," and other Metro wonderplays, directed "The Snowbird" and also plays the leading male role in it. His characterization of the primitive, passionate, but gentle hearted, woodsman, whose virtue qualities win first the admiration and then the love of the whimsical maid, portrayed by Miss Taliaferro, is distinctly impressive and true to life.

The story of "The Snowbird" sets forth how Lois Wheeler, whose father, a traction magnate, is financially involved, goes into the far North woods to clear her father's name. Incidentally, also she hopes to free herself of the attentions of one, Bruce Mitchell, who holds her father in his power. The question involves the title to a tract of timber land, the deed for which has been destroyed, which the older Wheeler owned jointly with Henri Corbeau. Corbeau is dead and his son, Jean, holds the only authentic copy of the deed, which the father of his own, he refuses to give up. Wheeler, who has sold the land to Mitchell, cannot produce evidence of his title to it and is in danger of losing it. How Lois makes her way to Jean Corbeau's cabin, dressed as a boy, after a desperate adventure with the guide who has brought her to the settlement, how she wins Jean's pro-
